Pantai Besar Kecil, Seminyak, Bali Indonesia Price: IDR 115,000 for a session Average time: 1 hour "I really like that I have such small, neat designs," says Henry, who's getting tattooed at Jalan Pantai Klong Magelang. When it comes to his leather jacket, a long-running fashion trend in Bali, he's a little less enthusiastic. "The tattoo has to fit the clothes you're wearing, if there is one," he says. The tattoos are made by Nalin Suvadia, who has been tattooing in Seminyak for more than a decade and who works out of her own shop, Ultimo Art Gallery, on Jalan Raya Seminyak. "People often want tattoos on exotic locations," Suvadia explains, "but I prefer to focus on the more traditional, or 'backpacker' places in the world. I always chose places where I've been, or will go, so it relates to my life. I start the process by finding out my client's history, paying close attention to their body movements, and paying attention to their interests. I want to know where they would like to go, and that applies to the design itself." The prices vary from place to place, though they won't make you pay more than IDR 80,000. Here are several popular spots, and their prices.Human Resource Management Managing Workforce and Human Resources The key to developing and implementing a human resources management system is having the right information. A HR Management system enables companies to view and analyze their human resources. Largely by using software, not only can a HR system track how employees work their shifts, but also address employee's training needs, and budget to ensure they have the best tools available. One of the greatest reasons to develop a human resource management system is that it will allow companies to communicate with employees using two-way messaging systems like e-mail
